etc... This way you should tell people which version you're using, why, so people don't have to dive into the deep end. A: You don't need to use the link anymore. Windows 10 has the "Get apps and games" section in Settings -> Update & Security -> For developers -> App and game download -> (here you can find version number) In v7.0.22.6 you have the option "Get apps and games" in Settings -> Update & Security -> For developers -> App and game download and v7.0.22.7 (last one) you have this option under "Windows Store" 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to the production of epoxies. In particular, the present invention relates to the production of cyanated epoxies by the reaction of epoxide monomers or prepolymers with cyanamide.

2. Related Art Cyanated epoxies have been used as binder systems in glass fiber-reinforced plastics. Cyanated epoxies have typically been made by the reaction of a molar excess of epoxide with a molar excess of cyanamide in an organic solvent, such as toluene or xylene. Various methods for the synthesis of cyanated epoxies have been reported. See, e.g., U.S. Pat. No. 4,532,265 (Eastman Kodak), U.S. Pat. No. 5,220,037 (Consolidated), and WO 98/40426 (Reckitt Benckiser). Cyanated epoxy binder systems are also widely used in other applications, such as fillers for coatings, for dry film photoresists, electrical connectors, adhesives, inks, plastic optical fiber, and others. Particularly useful cyanated epoxy binder systems have been made from bisphenol A glycidyl ether prepolymers using amine and/or cyanamide curing agents. A problem with the production of conventional cyanated epoxies is that the reaction is slow, requiring typically about one hour to prepare a product. In addition, the solvents used must be removed, which can be expensive, and which in turn affects the economics of the process. Also, highly reactive epoxides, such as glycidyl ethers, are difficult to manufacture and store due to possible reaction with air. This is particularly problematic if 1cb139a0ed
