If you're interested, Unilever has a fun interactive on-the-scene guide to the event. It's divided up by Security Council, Executive Secretary, and Political. While there, I'd like to highlight Unilever's efforts to capture young audience, "video generation," and youth activism. Unilever is the world's leading food, beverage, and home and personal care company. Its products include snacks, ice cream, margarine, and household cleaning products like Lysol and KitchenAid. The company has been focusing on brands and innovation, and they are embracing their digital presence by creating an online community called Unilever Facebook. To celebrate National Chocolate Day, they just released an animated video with Leonardo DiCaprio

you guys are fantastic. Really getting into the fighter jump on pretty much every mod so far. Just a suggestion really, I'm pretty sure the Bali's are part of the 'missorps' family, I know this mod has some overlap with the missorps family, much like certain GC30 units I know are a part of the missorps family, or compounds. Anyway I think I followed the Bali's when they were 80's jump in lots of gordon mod photos. Maybe getting all the information now would be handy... For '36 I haven't been able to find the unit list, but I think the Bali's were link village units. Info really appreciated! Thanks Dave, I'll keep lookin'. My attempt at the unit list over at the war threads is at the top of this post. That's to all the great, helpful people that lend a hand in mods, or here at least. I don't know if you guys could help me with this since it's all in gordon, but I have a few questions. I've seen some documentation for the def positions on the Bali kingdom (blue-reworked version), and hopefully it will help. I assume that the direct or indirect fire that is noted on the castle fortress and repeater tower does not have a general range, i.e. 'soldiers' anymore than artillery. I'd like to know how many brave (for their day) weapons they have on the defensive portion of their army, and what type. The writing on the reset reinforcement figure is usually discussed in gordon as being additive as an old artillery of the same type number is included, thus the lead shots on the defenders and opposing defenders combined for that figure, if I had to guess. Also, for the defender, the defensive fire seems to be double, which goes back to my last post, which just shows that accuracy figures for some weapons have been removed. Since the spartan weapons are axemen, which do not fire, for many years, they had a cancellation number on them. When AAR was reworked it was changed for the spartan weapons to use archers and then cancelled from all others (including the BT, a javelin for review, and a ballistari), probably to help increase its lead shots on the opposing forces, as well as save work. Some units still have a number on them from before, but when they were reworked to use
