The association of serum immunoglobulins with the development of complications of diabetes has been demonstrated in both animals and humans. In the animal model, the hypergammaglobulinemia is largely due to a rise in the B cells and, to a lesser extent, in the T cells. In the human situation, there appears to be a similar association between serum immunoglobulins and progression of disease in subjects who are free of clinically apparent vascular disease. In contrast, immunoglobulin levels are less likely to be associated with incidence of diabetic retinopathy. The pathogenesis of the hyperglobulinemia is not clearly elucidated. The evidence suggests that factors which influence the differentiation of B lymphocytes from their precursor to plasma cells are responsible. Twins and Jest Twins and Jest is a 1992 album by Steve Hackett featuring twin brother John Hackett and his band, 9, released on the EMI label. The album was originally released on vinyl (1992) and CD (1994) in the UK, and on Compact Disc in the US (1994). The
