Elden Ring Features Key:

Explore a Full World
Independent Customization
Vast World Connects You with Others
A Small Core Team Goes All-Out

Favorite Features:

- Lore The story of a multilayered story told in fragments. A young girl accidentally wins an Elden Ring, revealing the journey of three different people—as they change their lives and explore incredible worlds in search of their destiny.
- Combat High-Speed Combat System A fast, new attack/block system that offers unique choices in terms of specialized attacks that produce spectacular effects. For example, the player can perform a 30-hit combo using multiple attacks, or perform a giant wave attack that fills the screen with the blood of your foes. You'll also be able to freely perform three different attacks for a single action. Every action performed in combat (e.g. special attacks, blocks, casting magic) affects your score and action points, and generates an appropriate amount of blood, thus creating a fresh atmosphere in battle. Player with high action points can use spectacular attacks to deal massive damage to their enemies.
- Character Development On/Off Extra Dormancy The development of your characters' actual relationships with others during on- and off-game segments. There are four different relationships, and you will have the ability to lead a friendly or hostile attitude to anyone you meet, resulting in on- and off-game experiences of varied interest. This means that you can create relationships only with friends, or the other way around.
- Sense of Dislocation (OUTLINE) A People Skills System Maintain your relationships with others to increase your score. Check your relationships in battle at the end of your turn. Any positive change will be added as a bonus to your total score, along with any negative changes (including those that would improve your score). Naturally, your relationships with others will improve with experience.
- Battle Navigation World Revalorization Encounter Important People of the World Non-playable characters (NPCs) have all been implemented as locations. You can establish a dialogue with NPCs by paying their respects during on-game segments, as well as receive important information and items

>From the quality and depth of the game, I think for its price it is even better than the Baldur's Gate series. >This game has the same kind of atmosphere as the Baldur's Gate series. The opening scene is a mystery. >The story is clear and the pacing is excellent. >There are plenty of great characters. >There are only a few annoying bosses and no irritating quests. >Story is mostly about decisions, choices and consequences with strong synergy between story and gameplay. >UI is good, best I've seen from BioWare. >The combat system is actually fun. >The sound and music is great. >The game is hard. >However, it is easy to get good in the end. >My only complaint is that it is way too short. >The end level of the game is not linear but instead presents you with a choice of going left or right, and from there you find out where to go on your own. >The sword-fighting is really fun and the skill tree is huge. >It's going to be a great game. () >This is a new title and I was surprised at how well it did in development. I still have not finished the title and can only hope that it surpasses my expectations on the rest. () > The enemy progression was balanced between a fun challenge and the most logical, intuitive and nuanced enemy behaviors I've seen in a game. The story was a personal favorite, complete with combat that was unpredictable as it was stylized. While several individual areas felt a bit short and no area was particularly large, it was a fun game with a solid foundation. () >Being a fan of the series and familiar with most of the game mechanics, I found it to be a great adventure. Definitely a must have title for those who like a good twist in their RPGs. () >This is a great game! It has unique combat, combined bff6bb2d33

Tears of the Sisters on Titania! As of September 13th!!'ve been playing a lot of Guild Wars and WoW lately... but I don't play MMO's very often, so I'm starting to look to games with a bit more depth in order to replenish my dwindling energy. But it happened...

The Lovely Elenar, also known as Mr. Bomb, is expanding his writing to form a regular feature on my main blog! He is an avid and talented game critic and as such I couldn't be more happy to start working together.

With the recent developments in Guild Wars 2, I have a lot of interest in ArenaNet's latest game... and so do you, I'm sure! No

I've come to a point where i have to fight for inspiration, and i'm wondering what you guys think should be my next step. I have sort of a funny skeleton idea going, which i've seen many times before. But i'm utterly lost the concept, the actual 'gameplay'. I have made a detailed concept design so you can take a look for yourself, you can see what i have in mind. Please take a look at the concept and give me some advice what would be the right way to go, without ruining the original concept if possible. My goal is to make this happen, i only need some advice, and the most preferably some concrete answers from you guys
