It also has a depth more usually associated with PC games, but that'sÂ.Q: Why isn't my promise returning a single value? I'm stuck on what I think is the most basic of promises. I've got a route which looks like this:post(function (req, res, next) { var nonce = 'basic-auth-1'; var user = 'username'; User.findOne({ nonce: nonce, user: user }, function (err, user) { if (user) { return res.redirect(300, '/admin'); } else { next(err); } }) ... The second line grabs a user with nonce 'basic-auth-1' and user 'username'. User.findOne() is an async operation and inside of it I call next() in the.findOne() callback to return the appropriate response or error to the route. So if the user is found then a redirect is returned, otherwise an error is returned. The user.isAuthenticated() function is one of my 'admin' route hooks. 0cc13bf012
