----- Custom Flags Description: Allows players to upload their own flags to the game. When a player opens their web browser and opens the custom flag link, they will have the option to upload their own custom flags and use them in game. Features: - Allows players to upload their own custom flags. - By default a backup of the client's old flags will be saved. - Flags can be designated as restricted. - Flags can have a image and description. - Flags can have a default shortcut. - Flags can be styled into one of several different types. - Flags can be made to turn on or off. - Flags can be set as the default faction flag on a faction. Requirements: - Requires either the Seasons add-on or the Necromunda expansion.

Version 1.3: ----- This update to the custom flag uploader has several changes: - Check of the file types has been expanded to accept many more file types. - The installer for the custom flag uploader is now an actual zip file rather than a web page. - A copy of the custom flag addon has been saved as its own file. - A reading of the instructions for the custom flag uploader has been changed. - Various small changes to improve the interface. This change breaks current custom flags that were created prior to August 2016. Check out the changelog for the following: This new functionality was implemented in the patch of August 23rd, 2016. Recommendation: ----- If you have an older copy of the custom flag addon, you can upload it manually. The installation of the custom flag is as follows: 1. Right click on the folder that contains the menu of the custom flag addon in Windows Explorer. 2. Select Send to and then select an option named "CD-ROM" or "Device". 3. Select "Create Folder". 4. Right click on the new folder you just created, and select "send to" and then "send to CD-ROM" or "Send to Device" (depending on what you used in step 2.) 5. Once it's sent to your CD-ROM or device, follow the instructions to install the addon. Support: ----- If you have any questions about this mod please send an email to ozisoot

Good luck!

It appears to work with Devage's "captcha" but it works when you open another tab without ws in URL. Is there an easy way to get multiple tabbed forms to validate? If you can't read the font that is automatically applied over the web page and the passwords change. It's annoying to report spam. A: I don't know why but for the sake of this question this actually appears to work. Typically when you submit textarea elements to server it's always a problem unless you code your own. So I'd love to know how and if there's a better way. I tried setting the innerHTML to the field and that didn't work, nor did changing the CSS value... Now using CSS/HTML to hide the text with display set to none

Dragon Blaze is a vertically scrolling shooting game. You start at the bottom of the screen and move up. As you move, you shoot enemies from the screen bottom to the top of the screen. The game begins with only 4 players. However, the number of players increases to 8 by the time you reach the final screen. Enemies attack you while you move up and move around in the air. To avoid enemy bullets you must jump over them or shoot them from below. In addition, three types of shots can be shot; a normal shot, a bomb shot and a magic shot. Normal shots are standard shots. Bombs move up to the next screen, while magic shots move vertically up to the next screen. Using bombs and magic shots, you must clear all the enemies to advance to the next screen. The player with the highest score wins. The more numerous the enemy bullets, the slower your movement rate will be. The slow your rate of movement will make your enemies bullets annihilate you, giving you a score bonus. Enemies also increase in number, forming a defensive area around the boss core. Bosses with their own attacks and various styles of defense. Enemies are gradually increased in number over the course of the game, forming the basic structure for the game. As the core of the boss is separated, the enemies increase in size. They also get increased attack power. They will also get a protective layer of magic. Unleash the magic shot, dodge the enemy magic shot, and strike the boss core! If you are attacked by a boss, you'll feel the intensity of the boss' attack. Your score is accumulated based on your performance, and is displayed at the top of the screen. As you clear more obstacles and bosses, your screen will be filled with a beautiful background. Connecting the enemies is the fastest in the game. It has the highest defense power and a shot pattern most dangerous to your health. In addition, the boss core becomes separated after each stage. As the boss core is separated, the enemies will increase in size and defense. Dispel all of them to get the bonus! Your magic shot will be performed in a new form and you'll be taken to an area called the "Dragon World". Your health will be depleted and you will be taken back to the world of normal boss and normal enemies. Defeat the bosses again

- Pick-up-and-play- Graphic: - Gameplay: - Replay: - Comunity: - Copyright 2013, GRAZI Games, LLCBy Derrick Broze The St. Louis County Prosecutor's office has announced that it will not be pursuing charges against James Gosch despite credible evidence the case is being used to attack critics of the police. Local news agencies report that prosecutors will not charge James Gosch because the evidence in the case was inconclusive, and the evidence shows only that Gosch had consensual sex with a 14-year-old girl. The Gateway Pundit previously reported that St. Louis County Prosecutor Bob McCulloch declined to press charges against Gosch despite a lack of physical evidence and witness statements. The Gateway Pundit also reported on a possible conflict of interest on the part of McCulloch, given that he issued a statement yesterday which contained almost identical language to one written by Free Republic's "Civil War" regarding his investigation into the Gosch case. St. Louis County Prosecutor Bob McCulloch said last week he was "not going to discuss whether or not the investigation was right or wrong." He criticized critics for reporting on details "not necessarily from public information, but from the press." "This is not a time for anybody to be taking that kind of personal information and using it against any individual in any manner," McCulloch said. "I think it's time to leave it alone." On Monday the prosecutor's office threw the case into disarray, announcing it would be dropping all charges as well as the investigation. The decision by McCulloch's office comes after the accusations by "Civil War" about what the prosecutors were hiding and the details revealed by the parents of Jill LePore Gosch. During an interview with the Gateway Pundit, LePore said, "If they were so sure this guy was guilty, why did they let us look at all of their evidence. Why did they let us read all of these documents? This case was a matter of life or death, and they were so sure he was guilty, why didn't they bring in the police to lock him up?" Gosch is known as "Jeffery Dahmer" in the alternative media due to the similarities between his alleged crimes and those

, and the Dawning of a New Era Reality is an illusion of reality, like a dream. The definition of reality is subjective. The best way to explain this is to cite various literary, play, and film examples, but keep in mind that it is of little use to humans if movies are just illusions of reality. Reality is based on how you, personally, perceive it. You, personally, create the illusion of reality so that you and others can act in a way that meets your needs. Likewise, you are more likely to project your own desires and aspirations on to other people, acting accordingly. For example, if you project you own feelings of self-worth on to others, they will be more likely to feel that your opinion is important. Thus, the idea of reality is intertwined with the idea of perception. The only way to understand reality is to try and understand everyone's idea of how reality works. It should also be noted that the consensus reality is a condition or system whereby, not only individual pairs, but entire societies agree on a set of definitions and laws that are enforced against any who defy the system. Now, don't expect Kselia's, Scatter, or Sibi to give a word of advice or a cursory mention of this. This Guide. However, at the very least, try to list one or two more examples of people who have inspired you. "The illuminon from Celestia's comet came through my master Baum's window and said, 'let your dreams go', so he floated down the stairs and said, 'THE ETERNAL DREAMERS COME.' I heard those words. Surely, I knew there were others like us, for I had always known about the eternal dreamers. Now I understand why I keep falling asleep and why I awake at dawn." -from The Eternal Dreamers by Sibi, author of this guide. "I follow the group now, convinced that though I'd always know them through their dreams, this was real. Even as a dreamer I'd so rarely known other dreamers, let alone met them that this was extraordinary. A sister of Maia, like Maia, like her." - from Generation of Chaos - Faeris, the Illuminon, and the Dawning of a New Era
