Carter Mansion is a historic Georgian-style brick mansion located at 37 Main Street in Greenwich, Connecticut. The two-story castle-like building was built in 1860 on land that belonged to Wilton Carter, a wealthy merchant, and his family. Originally a three-bay wide brick front building with four gables, additions expanded the structure towards the rear. Over the years a number of celebrities have vacationed at the mansion, including the Vanderbilts, the Carnegies, and the Freemans. The mansion was listed on the National Register of Historic Places on November 2, 1983. History The house was originally built in the late 1840s on Greenwich's west side, likely as an entertainment center. Notable guests In 1860, the mansion was sold to the W. & J. Ford family who rented it to Henry Augustus DuBois, a recluse and amoral poet who had boarded there when he lived in Greenwich in the 1850s and 1860s. He composed his "ballad recitations" on the property's back lawn. Toward the 1870s, Jane Caron and Harry Tracy Vorse, from Boston, N.Y. were frequent boarders, as well as the Bakers of Stamford, Ct. (half-brothers of Dr. Henry A. Baker, who inherited the mansion and spent the family fortune in the 1920s, losing his life in a circus stunt in 1932.) Other celebrities who rented the mansion were: Joseph Kerans, famous for creating the Keran typeface family. William E. Lamson, a prominent St. Paul businessman. In 1888 Lamson bought the mansion, which he rented to Will R. Case. John Jacob Astor, Jr. who leased the mansion in 1880 and brought his family to the house for summer. Dr. Henry Smith Hurd, Society physician of Boston, was leasing it in 1876. William Henry Channing, a friend of Henry Ward Beecher, leased the house for the winter of 1872. Henry P. Kellett, a clerk of the Supreme Court of Connecticut, who rented the mansion in 1873. Raymond A. Buck, a prominent St. Louis lawyer, was leasing the property in 1874.
