Aching Dreams 2 free download crackedQ; How do I handle special characters in an android java string? I am making a chat application in which I save a message to the user profile. This message can be anything from text, numbers, to whatever else. So if the user sends a message like "myTest@email.com" I have to store the "@email.com" in a string and then parse that string to get the email address out of it and save it in the database. What I need to know is how do I parse the string for special characters like ".", "!", "#", "@", etc so that it will return the correct value for a normal email address but not for "cheese.com" for example. I can use regex but I am looking for an easier way to do this. Thanks for any help
