KEYMACRO is a file encryption/decryption utility designed to aid in the secure transmission of computer files. KEYMACRO allows you to encrypt and decrypt files using a 256-bit AES encryption algorithm. The encryption and decryption keys are not stored in your computer's memory. The algorithm used is compatible with other programs and OS, such as Microsoft Office, and can be used to encrypt/decrypt Microsoft Office Documents, and MDF, MDE, MTP, Zip, RAR, UDF, 7z, and other popular file formats. Data is not saved to disk, so there is no space usage limit, and the encryption can be easily disabled. When you are finished with the encrypted file, you can delete the files from the disk or compress them to save space. You can even run it on a thumb drive to move the encrypted file to another computer. KEYMACRO supports multiple files and folder/directory and works with all the Windows file extensions. A Windows version and a command line version are available. KEYMACRO has built in help and documentation.
