I have several entities with the same keys and values and a lot of entities that references a common intermediate entity that specifies a mapping between the entity and another entity For example, I have three entities: location, that maps to latitude and longitude division that maps from location and a division to a geographical division country that maps from location and a country to a division The link between location and division is an intermediate entity. So for example, location/country1 maps to 1/1 or location/country2 maps to 2/2. Now I would like to find all locations for a division. Using the entities I have, I would think that I need a query like this: SELECT * FROM country1 c, location l, division d WHERE l.id = :locationId AND c.divisionId = :divisionId AND d.id = l.divisionId But this query will only be able to return a location for a division. I can't figure out how to tell Spring Data that it should be able to return multiple locations. Is there any way to do that? A: This is what you need: @Query("select c.id, c.divisionId, c.countryId from Country c " + "join c.locations l " + "join l.division d " +
